

AMARU HIGH VINEYARDS

CABERNET SAUVIGNON

ORIGIN:

Calchaquí Valley, Argentina

TERROIR:

The Calchaquí Valley is a sub-region located in the Northwest of Argentina. At 1800 meters | 6000 feet this terroir displays unique characteristics. Sandy alluvial soils, wide thermal amplitude, low humidity and drip irrigation from the Andes allows our wines to be highly concentrated in color, aromas and flavors with a unique fruity character.

STORYLINE:

Amaru is one of the gods of the indian culture who inhabited the Chalchaqui Valleys. This supreme creature represented by a “flying snake” symbolizes water, which brought fertility to the Calchaqui soils and connected humans to their gods.

VARIETY:

100% Cabernet Sauvignon

HARVEST:

Late March – First week of April

WINEMAKING:

Amaru Cabernet Sauvignon is a unique wine oriented to have a perfect balance between the fruity characteristic aromas and the oak, delivering finesse and complexity. Concentrated grapes, with medium and small grains are carefully chosen and quickly transferred to the winery to start with the elaboration process. Pre-fermentative macerations at 8°C in stainless steel tanks, and gently treatments during alcoholic fermentation are carried out. Utilization of both native and selected yeasts for the fermentation process. Post fermentative macerations, totalizing a maximum of 30 days. Malolactic fermentation in contact with oak. 70% of the wine is aged for 9 months in French and American oak barrels. The final blend is made with the extra 30% preserved in stainless steel tanks.

TASTING NOTES

Ruby red, dark and intense with tiles edges. Moderate tears.

Spicy where red pepper and paprika outstand. Medium oak with slight tobacco notes. Persistent. A typical Calchaqui Cabernet Sauvignon.

Sophisticated and complex, well balanced with a mouth full of ripe tanins. Balanced with herbal, fruit and chocolate notes outstanding.
